THE NEW PRINCESS
30M

The first Hanse 675, the biggest ship ever built by Hanse Yachts, hits the water.

The time has come for the Hanse 675 to hit the water. The floats are rigged and the new flagship of the HanseYachts AG is ready to sail in the port of Greifswald, Germany.

The 32-metre carbon mast reaches into the sky and gives the Hanse 675 its last touch, creating a 21-metre-long high-tech luxury yacht. The Hanse 675 not only breaks the record as the biggest ship ever built by the HanseYachts AG, but it is also Germany's largest yacht built in series production.

"With emotion and high-tech, our new queen of the seas embodies the Hanse design philosophy of sensual clarity and modern luxury, an even more avant-garde interior and with fluid exterior lines, a milestone in series yacht building," Dr Jens Gerhardt, CEO of HanseYachts AG, said.

As all Hanse yachts, the Hanse 675 was developed by judel/vrolijk & co. With clear shapes, smooth surfaces and the typical uncluttered deck layout, it conveys corresponding sportiness. The elongated teak fore deck as well as the flowing rooflines provide the perfect place to enjoy the sun.

"Life at sea implies light, air, water and distance. We have transferred these attributes to the interior of the yacht, creating a spacious and bright interior, resembling the elegance of marine life," interior designer Jörg Heuser said.

Large windows in the hull and a long panoramic roof with an electrically openable section on deck contribute to the elegant appearance and give an idea of how the sunlight floods the interior. The optional hardtop with integrated speakers and spotlights provides shade and can be opened while sailing.

The multimedia package of the Hanse 675 also impresses. The cockpit has three 21-inch screens, which can be used either as plotters or for entertainment purposes.

"Based on examples and solutions, as they can only be found in nature, we created a world that will amaze the viewer with its many highlights."

Soft curves and smooth transitions of various fabrics, such as handmade leather to panels of fine wood, create a hand-flattering atmosphere, which is rarely seen in a series yacht.

In the owner's cabin, the centrepiece of any luxury yacht, a wave shape design has been implemented to use the available space in the best possible way. Artfully mounted shelves and sideboards make the impression of floating in the air.

The spacious salon offers a cozy atmosphere and invites guests with its unique design to be carried away by the artistic shapes. The card table is provided with a large screen and can be used as a comfortable office at sea. The coffee bar is lovingly encased in the sidewall and supports the stylish ambience. A wine cooler is also included in the interior and ensures the optimum temperature.

In the various bathrooms, the structure, optimised by evolutionary processes, continues. Round showers not only look attractive, but they simultaneously create more space and therefore more comfort. At the same time, HanseYachts has combined high quality building materials such as stainless steel and fine wood veneers with neatly accentuated lighting architecture. Another highlight in the bathroom is the genuine stone, which has been installed the first time in a Hanse.

An additional feature is the unique layout, which provides the owner and guests the highest level of privacy. The crew has a separate entry on the port side of the cockpit that leads both into the kitchen area as well as to the spacious crew cabin for up to three, with an adjacent wet room. The kitchen and utility area are separated from the living area, allowing the guests to relax undisturbed.
